Five Japan-based AIG Group Companies Recognized under 2018 Certified Health and Productivity Management
Organization Recognition Program (White500)

February 21, 2018, Tokyo – Five Japan-based AIG Group entities were recognized under “2018 Certified Health and Productivity Management Organization Recognition Program (White500)” as a company placing strategic emphasis on employee health and productivity management.

The recognition is awarded to large enterprises by the Japan Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry (METI) and Nippon Kenko Kaigi to acknowledge, encourage and support particularly laudable efforts toward employee health and productivity management. Five Japan-based entities within the AIG group were cited: AIG Japan Holdings, AIG General Insurance Company, American Home Assurance Company, AIG Partners Company, and AIG Business Partners.

To promote continued growth and employee satisfaction, the AIG Group last year initiated a “best place to work” campaign intended to provide each and every employee with an active, interesting and fulfilling working environment. As a key factor for the enhancement of both motivation and performance, AIG places an emphasis on physical and emotional health, not only through further refinement of organizational and personnel systems but also through such measures as discouraging overtime work, encouraging extended vacations and promoting employee health management.

Robert L. Noddin, President and CEO of AIG Japan Holdings, said “The White 500 designation is an important acknowledgement of the steps we’ve been taking at AIG Japan to make sure our employees have the best framework in place for managing their health and well-being. Our aim is to create an environment that is truly the best place to work for all.”
